

Directions for the extension walk

For the extension walk do not turn left at **. (A) Continue a little further downhill and turn first right, beside a wire fence, and go through a 'green tunnel' of trees. Follow the fence, ignoring any side paths. (B) Ignore a right-hand fork where you can see some riding stables down in the valley on your left. Continue, passing through broken gate posts at the bottom of the hill, where you turn left towards the lane. (C) Turn right at the gate onto the lane and continue, keeping the road on your left. Soon you will come to a junction of paths and the gates into Windy Gap. Go through the gates and straight ahead on the finger-posted footpath, keeping the road on your left. Dogs need to be on a lead in this grazed area. (D) At the fork, bear right on a path winding gently uphill through the gorse. At the fence line turn right uphill and follow the path round. (E) There is a bench here, where a path joins you from the left, through a gate in the fence. Continue on the path back along the top of the ridge, below the trees. There are three seats on this stretch which make a good spot for a break/picnic with nice views. Eventually the path drops down to a gate. (F) Go through this, ignore the marked path ahead and half-left, and turn right. At the end of the fence go straight ahead on a path through the woods. Continue, ignoring any side paths. The path bears round slightly right, below Whitmore Vale House hidden in the trees to your left. Continue and you will eventually rejoin your original track opposite the riding stables. (G) Turn left and retrace your way back along this path that you were on at the beginning of the extension. Turn left back up the main track (H) for a very short distance to rejoin the main walk, continuing with the directions from **, but turning right at first instead of left.

Beacon Hill

The village of Beacon Hill grew rapidly from nothing to become a residential area in the 1880s. So far as is known this thriving community has no ancient history. The parish church of St. Alban's was constructed in 1906 to designs by Coleridge.

Hindhead and Haslemere Area

The Hindhead and Haslemere area became popular with authors and artists in the late 19th century, when the railway opened up this part of Surrey. Haslemere is an attractive old market town nestling near the point where three counties meet. It was described in an early visitor guide as the 'fashionable capital of the beautiful Surrey highlands' and now lies within the Surrey Hills Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty (AONB). Much of the lovely countryside around this area is now owned by The National Trust.

Dickens Farm

Very little is known of this farm in the valley. Field systems like this have been used for hundreds of years where there is a supply of water and fertile land. The National Trust is now managing these fields to encourage wild flowers, butterflies and insects.

Lime Kilns

Chalk (limestone) was baked in kilns such as this to produce quicklime which was put on the fields to neutralise the naturally poor acid grassland (due to the underlying sandy geology). When limestone (calcium carbonate) is heated a process called calcination occurs where the carbonate is broken down into calcium oxide (quicklime) and carbon dioxide. The resulting improved pasture contains clovers, richer grasses and other plants which help increase the cattle's milk yield.

Beacon Hill Walk

This pleasant short circular walk is 2km (1.3 miles) long and takes approximately ¾ - 1 hour. It starts from the shops at Beacon Hill (off the A287) where you can get refreshments and park nearby. The route is covered by OS Explorer map 133. The extension, which takes you through heathland and woodland, is an additional 2.5km (1.6 miles) long and takes approximately an extra 1-1¼ hours.

Much of the walk goes over uneven or hilly ground; it is therefore not recommended for pushchairs, wheelchairs or anyone with walking difficulties. Please wear appropriate footwear and take care crossing the road. During and/or after wet weather some areas can become particularly muddy. There is a climb at the end of the walk and the extension has one steep climb and a couple of gates to negotiate.

Main Route      - - - - -
Additional Route      ·········

1 Park in the car park behind the Beacon Hill shops (turn off the A287 into Beacon Hill Road, take the first left, opposite the school, and first left again, signposted car park and recycling centre) and take the alleyway from the car park through to the shops. Turn right along Beacon Hill Road to its junction with the A287, turn right again and almost immediately cross over (taking great care). You are aiming for a path between two large trees to the right of the telephone box (as you look at it from across the road).

3 Turn right up to another bridle barrier and turn left on the wider, main track (Boxall's Lane). Follow it for some distance as it curves downhill. Note the old boundary banks all around this area. Use the path on the left bank to avoid the very rutted muddy stretch if necessary.

2 Almost immediately the path forks by a National Trust post, take the more obvious path to the right of the post. Follow this down through the trees until you join a wider track at a bridle barrier.

7 Continue on the path as it winds uphill and curves left, ignoring any side paths. Note the path is now wider, giving access to the farm, with stones added underfoot for traction. Pass some gates and after a while take a path to your right (slightly back on yourself). At this point you are just within sight of the bridle barrier (ahead) that you passed earlier in your walk. Take the footpath up through the trees, forking slightly left and then right. Shortly you will return past the NT post near the telephone box and back to the road and Beacon Hill shops.

6 After a while you will pass a private lake on your right partially hidden behind a fence. Continue, bearing slightly left and come into a small opening. Ahead of you notice the remains of a lime kiln and one remaining wall of the ruined Dickens Farm to its left. There are also some small fruit trees on the left which were part of the farm's orchard.

4 A line of wooden fencing on your right ends just before the lane gets to the bottom (you can just spot a bridge over a stream ahead); 60m beyond the end of the fence (***) turn left (slightly back on yourself) at the break in the boundary bank and a National Trust post.

(***) This is the point where the extension breaks off and returns.
